

Help Lindsay!

A few years ago as the Personal Trainer Coordinator at Pinnacle Career Institute I met a young lady who was different. She was different because she had more drive and passion than most. She had worked as a package handler for a major shipping company and Massage Therapy was a physical career that would allow her to express herself. She worked harder than most and had more challenges than the average student. But she was blessed with even more grit and drive. I knew she was athletic and had ran some 5k's and was getting into cycling. I encouraged her to pursue cycling for obvious reasons! A lot of people talk about riding and racing so I wasn't holding my breath. I should have because in the Summer of 2010 Lindsey jumped into the KS State Road Race in Pittsburg in a GP VeloTek jersey and pulled the whole race only to lose the sprint. I don't think that even phased her and her career was launched. She just kept her head down and kept on racing. After starting her cycling career on Team GP VeloTek Lindsey found Cyclo-Cross and joined Slimen und Grossen for the dirty experience!

Lindsay represents all that is right about sports in America.
